

1. Piled up next to the washer, I began doing the laundry.
2. While talking on the phone, the doorbell rang.
3. Standing on the balcony, the ocean view was magnificent.
4. Running across the floor, the rug slipped and I lost my balance.
5. While taking out the trash, the sack broke.
6. I almost listened to the whole album.
7. He was staring at the girl by the vending machine wearing dark glasses.
8. We read that Janet was married in her last letter.
9. The faulty alarm nearly sounded five times yesterday.
10. I heard that there was a revolution on the evening news.
11. He barely kicked that ball twenty yards.
12. Changing the oil every 3,000 miles, the car seemed to run better.
13. To keep the young recruits interested in getting in shape, an exercise program was set up for the summer months.
14. Students who seek their instructors' advice often can improve their grades.
15. Spanning six decades, a period that encompasses dozens of albums, Bob Dylan continues to be a relevant musician well into the 21st Century.
16. I was late for the school bus again. Running for the bus, my book fell in the mud.
17. She claimed yesterday she saw a UFO.
18. The assembly line workers were told they had been fired by the personnel director
19. Ugly, warty creatures with protruding noses and bat-like wings, architecture students find gargoyles endlessly fascinating as expressions of the grotesque.
20. Disgusted with his own dangling modifiers, the teacher reviewed his handouts and felt ill.
21. Having applied a tourniquet, the bleeding finally stopped.
22. Because John knew only English, he could not read a menu offered to him by his waitress that was written in Spanish.